The Language of Play

Using role-play to develop literacy

This exciting training opportunity explores the enormous potential of role-play in the development of children's language and communication skills.

Designed for Foundation and Key Stage One practitioners, this half-day course offers:

- inspirational starting points for language based play activities
- ideas for extending vocabulary through role-play
- guidance on providing structured activities to encourage and support listening, speaking, reading and writing
- practical advice on how to create role-play areas with children and seize upon self-initiated learning
- suggestions on the vital role of adults within play.

“This is the kind of practical course that changes what you do in the classroom.”

Duration: Half day
